

Privacy Notice

FACTS	What Does Donnelly Penman & Partners, Do With Your Personal Information?
The Law	Financial companies choose how they share your personal information. Federal law gives consumers the right to limit some but not all sharing. Federal law also requires us to tell you how we collect, share and protect your personal information. Please read this notice carefully to understand what we do.
Our Policy	The types of personal information we collect and share depend on the product or service you have with us. This information can include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Social security number • Income • Employment and residential information • Account money and security balances • Transaction detail history • Investment objectives, goals, and risk tolerance • Credit history and credit scores When you are no longer our customer, we continue to share your information as described in this notice.
Your Rights	All financial companies need to share customers' personal information to run their everyday business. In the section below, we list the reasons financial companies can share their customers' personal information, the reasons DPP chooses to share, and whether you can limit this sharing.
Definitions
Everyday Business Purposes	The actions necessary by financial companies to run their business and manage customer accounts, such as processing transactions, mailing and auditing services, providing information to credit bureaus, responding to court orders and legal investigations.
Affiliates	Companies related by common ownership or control. They can be financial and nonfinancial companies.
Non-Affiliates	Companies not related by common ownership or control. They can be financial and nonfinancial companies. DPP does not share information with non-affiliates for marketing purposes.
Joint Marketing	A formal agreement between nonaffiliated financial companies that together market financial products or services to you. DPP does not engage in joint marketing with non-affiliates.

Reasons we can share your personal information	Does DPP share?	Can you limit this sharing?
For our everyday business purposes—such as to process your transactions, maintain your account(s), respond to court orders and legal investigations, or report to credit bureaus	Yes	No
For our marketing purposes—to offer our products and services to you	Yes	No
For joint marketing with other financial companies	No	We do not share
For our affiliates' everyday business purposes—information about your transactions and experiences	Yes	No
For our affiliates' everyday business purposes—information about your creditworthiness	No	We do not share
For our affiliates to market to you	No	We do not share
For non-affiliates to market to you	No	We do not share
Contact Us	Call DPP at (313) 446-9000

Sharing Practices
How often does DPP notify me about their practices?	We must notify you about our sharing practices when you open an account and each year while you are a customer.
How does DPP protect my personal information?	To protect your personal information from unauthorized access and use, we use security measures that comply with federal law. These measures include computer safeguards and secured files and buildings.
How does DPP collect my personal information?	We collect your personal information, for example, when you <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • open an account or deposit money • pay for securities transactions • establish periodic distribution plans • conduct anti-money laundering review We also collect your personal information from others, such as credit bureaus, affiliates, or other companies.
Why can't I limit all sharing?	Federal law gives you the right to limit sharing only for <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • affiliates' everyday business purposes—information about your creditworthiness • affiliates to market to you • non-affiliates to market to you State laws and individual companies may give you additional rights to limit sharing.